in this book which was originally published in 2005 amanda lillie challenges the urban bias in renaissance art and architectural history by investigating the architecture and patronage strategies particularly those of the strozzi and the sassetti clans in the florentine countryside during the fifteenth century based entirely on archival material that remained unpublished at the time of publication her book examines a number of villas from this period and reconstructs the value systems that emerge from these sources which defy the traditional idealized interpretation of the renaissance villa here the house is studied in relation to the families who lived in them and to the land that surrounded them the villa emerges as a functional utilitarian farming unit upon whose success families depended and where dynastic and patrimonial values could be nurtured an exploration of ways of looking in renaissance florence where works of art were part of a complex process of social exchange renaissance florence of endless fascination for the beauty of its art and architecture is no less intriguing for its dynamic political economic and social life in this book patricia lee rubin crosses the boundaries of all these areas to arrive at an original and comprehensive view of the place of images in florentine society the author asks an array of questions why were works of art made who were the artists who made them and who commissioned them how did they look and how were they looked at
